

ABSTRACT

The invention provides universal e-tag primers and methods for their use in the sequence specific detection and multiplexed analysis of known, selected target nucleic acid sequences. The universal e-tag primers have sequence 5 specific and universal components for use in e-tag probe-mediated analysis of target nucleic acids.